

A confident member of the team, Grace has developed excellent project management skills, which enable her to secure consents and ease scheme delivery.

BA (Hons) Geography & Planning – Newcastle University
MSc Spatial Planning – University College London, Bartlett School of Planning
Member of the Royal Town Planning Institute

Grace joined the Planning Potential team in 2013, after completing her Masters at UCL. Whilst completing her studies, she also worked part-time at her local council and gained valuable experience at a range of different property and planning consultancies.

Since joining Planning Potential, Grace has worked on projects in various different sectors – including retail, leisure and high-end residential. This broad practical experience has allowed her to consolidate her planning knowledge and skills. A number of schemes have also involved listed buildings – enabling her to develop her heritage experience.

Grace compiles comprehensive appraisals, assessing development proposals to make clear and relevant recommendations to clients. She also prepares, submits, monitors and manages a range of planning applications and appeals on behalf of clients.

Grace now works in the leisure team, managing clients' portfolios, providing technical input and coordinating mixed consultant teams.
